Yo el Rey en la villa de Madrid a treze de junio de 1552

[The following text is a dense, handwritten document, likely a royal decree or a legal record. It is written in a cursive script and contains numerous names, titles, and legal phrases. The text is mostly illegible due to the handwriting and fading, but some words like 'Yo el Rey', 'Yo el Rey', 'Yo el Rey', and 'Yo el Rey' are visible, indicating the monarch's authority. The document appears to be a formal record of a royal decision or appointment.]
