

Allogarce... [The text is a dense, handwritten document in a medieval script, likely a legal or administrative record. It contains numerous lines of text, many of which are partially obscured by a large, irregular white stain in the center of the page. The text appears to be a formal agreement or a set of regulations, mentioning various terms and conditions. The script is highly cursive and difficult to decipher in many places due to the ink bleed-through and the damage to the parchment.]

2

