

Handwritten text in a medieval script, possibly a legal or administrative document, with some large initials and decorative flourishes.

Second section of handwritten text, continuing the document's content with dense script and some larger decorative elements.

Third section of handwritten text, appearing to be a distinct part of the document with similar script and structure.

