

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or legal record. The text is densely packed and spans the upper two-thirds of the page. It begins with a large, decorative initial 'M' and contains several lines of text, some of which are underlined. The script is highly stylized and characteristic of the late 15th or early 16th century.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, continuing from the upper section. This section also features a large, decorative initial 'M' and contains several lines of text, some of which are underlined. The script is highly stylized and characteristic of the late 15th or early 16th century.

