

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Latin or a related language. The text is arranged in approximately 20 horizontal lines. The script is dense and cursive, with many ligatures and flourishes. The ink is dark, and the paper shows signs of age and wear, including some staining and discoloration. The text appears to be a formal document or a religious text, given the use of certain words and the overall style.

137

