

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Gothic or similar, covering the majority of the page. The text is dense and appears to be a legal or administrative document, possibly a charter or a record of land transactions. It features several large, ornate initial letters, such as 'S' and 'P', which are decorated with intricate flourishes. The script is written in dark ink on aged, yellowish parchment that shows signs of wear, including some staining and irregular edges. The text is organized into several paragraphs, with some lines starting with a large initial letter. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but clearly antique manuscript.

Fragmentary handwritten text on the right edge of the page, appearing to be bleed-through or a continuation of the main text. It includes several lines of text, some of which are partially obscured by the torn edges of the parchment. The script is consistent with the main text on the left. There are also some faint, illegible markings and what appears to be a small signature or mark at the top right.
