

The first part of the manuscript is written in a cursive hand, likely a form of Gothic or early modern script. It consists of several lines of text, some of which are underlined. The text is somewhat faded and difficult to decipher, but appears to be a list or a series of entries.

The second part of the manuscript is written in a similar cursive hand, but with some larger, more decorative initials or headings. These are also underlined and appear to be part of a structured list or index.

The right margin contains several lines of text, possibly serving as a table of contents or a list of references. The text is written in a similar cursive hand to the main body of the manuscript.

