

Handwritten text in a medieval script, possibly Latin or Spanish, enclosed in a rectangular border. The text is dense and difficult to decipher due to fading and bleed-through.

Second block of handwritten text, continuing the narrative or list. It features several large initial letters and is also enclosed in a rectangular border.

Third block of handwritten text, showing further details of the document's content. The script remains consistent with the previous sections.

Fourth block of handwritten text, appearing as a shorter section or a specific entry within the larger text.

Fifth and final block of handwritten text on the page, concluding the visible portion of the document. It includes a date and a signature or name.

Large area of the page that is mostly blank or contains extremely faint, illegible text. There are some faint markings and a small, partially legible note near the bottom right.

A line of text at the bottom right of the page, possibly a date or a reference, written in a different hand or ink.

