

Abbas de canas q[ue]... [The main body of the document contains dense, handwritten text in a medieval script, likely a legal or administrative record. The text is written in a dark ink on aged, yellowed parchment. It begins with 'Abbas de canas q[ue]...' and continues with several lines of text, including names and titles. The handwriting is somewhat cursive and difficult to decipher in many places due to the age and fading of the ink. There are some larger, more prominent words and phrases that stand out, such as 'Abbas de canas', 'de canas', and 'de canas'. The text appears to be a formal document, possibly a charter or a record of a transaction. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but clearly aged historical document.

Carta de donacion

Lope Santhias del castro

onfando e donacion... [The bottom section of the document contains a smaller block of text, likely a continuation of the main text or a separate note. It begins with 'onfando e donacion...' and continues with several lines of text. The handwriting is similar to the main text but appears slightly less formal. There are some words that are difficult to read due to the cursive style and fading. The text seems to be a legal or administrative record, possibly a record of a donation or a land grant. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but clearly aged historical document.
