

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or letter, with several lines of text.

Libellus

Main body of handwritten text, appearing to be a petition or a formal request, with multiple lines of dense script.

Continuation of the handwritten text, showing further details of the document's content.

Final section of the handwritten text, possibly a signature or a concluding statement.

