

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Latin or a related language, covering the top two-thirds of the page. The text is dense and includes various words and phrases, some of which are partially obscured by ink bleed-through from the reverse side.

gen

succradel

millon

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Latin or a related language, covering the bottom third of the page. This section is more legible than the top portion and includes several distinct lines of text.

