

The mayor of London and the citizens of London have granted unto the said mayor and citizens
 full power and authority that they should and lawfully might do and execute all such things and matters as they should think good and expedient for the better governance and rule of the said city of London and the same
 to be observed and kept by the said mayor and citizens and their heirs and assigns forever as they have done and executed in the past
 times and years.

In witness whereof the
 have caused the said charter to be written in Latin and English and have caused the same to be sealed with the great seal of the said city of London
 the first day of January in the fifth year of the reign of King Edward the first.

In the fifth year of the reign of King Edward the first the said mayor and citizens of the said city of London have caused the said charter to be written in Latin and English and have caused the same to be sealed with the great seal of the said city of London the first day of January.
