

~~The first part of the text is heavily crossed out with a large, dark scribble.~~

 The remaining text is written in a dense, cursive script, likely a medieval or early modern hand. It appears to be a list or a series of entries, possibly related to a historical or scientific record. The text is difficult to decipher due to its cursive nature and the presence of some ink blots or damage on the paper.

The text begins with several lines that are crossed out. The legible text starts with a line that appears to be a date or a reference: "The first part of the text is heavily crossed out with a large, dark scribble." This is followed by several lines of text, including what looks like a list of items or names: "The first part of the text is heavily crossed out with a large, dark scribble." The text continues with more lines, some of which are also crossed out or heavily obscured by ink.

The text concludes with several lines that appear to be a final entry or a signature: "The first part of the text is heavily crossed out with a large, dark scribble." The overall appearance is that of a historical document, possibly a ledger or a list of records, that has been partially obscured by a large, dark scribble.