

Handwritten text in a cursive script, possibly a medieval manuscript. The text is dense and covers most of the page, with some faint bleed-through from the reverse side visible on the left. The script is highly stylized and difficult to decipher without specialized knowledge of the language or dialect.

