

The first thing I found when I stepped out of the house was a cold wind that felt like a blanket. I had never felt like this before. The air was so crisp and clear, it felt like I had been given a new gift. I had never experienced this before. It was like a warm blanket in the middle of winter.

The wind was so soft and gentle, it felt like a mother's hand.