

The first part of the manuscript is a list of names and titles, written in a cursive hand. The text is somewhat faded and difficult to read, but appears to be a list of individuals, possibly a roster or a list of officials. The names are written in a single column, with some lines starting with a capital letter.

Below the list, there are several lines of text, including what appears to be a signature or a set of initials. The handwriting is more fluid and less legible than the list above. There are also some faint markings and lines that might be part of a larger diagram or table, but they are too light to discern clearly.

The bottom half of the page contains a large, faint table or ledger. It consists of several columns and rows of text, which are extremely faded and illegible. The layout suggests a structured record, possibly a financial ledger or a list of accounts, with columns for different categories and rows for individual entries.

