

En el nombre de Dios... [The text is a dense, handwritten legal document in a medieval script, likely Castilian. It contains numerous names, titles, and references to land and law. The text is written in a cursive hand with some corrections and insertions. The document appears to be a charter or a legal agreement involving several parties and locations.]

Sancta et fidei... [This is a shorter, distinct line of text, possibly a signature or a specific clause within the document.]

En el nombre de Dios... [This is another block of handwritten text, similar in style and content to the first block. It continues the legal narrative or provides additional details of the agreement. The script is consistent with the first block.]
