

tra deo... (The text is a dense, handwritten legal document in Spanish, likely a royal decree or a contract. It contains numerous names, titles, and legal terms. The script is a cursive hand typical of the late 15th or early 16th century. The text is written in dark ink on aged, slightly yellowed paper. The handwriting is somewhat difficult to decipher due to its cursive nature and the fading of the ink in some places. The document appears to be a formal record of a transaction or a legal agreement, possibly involving land or titles, as suggested by the words 'señor', 'reyno', and 'señoría'. The text is organized into several paragraphs, with some lines starting with large, decorative initials. The overall appearance is that of a historical manuscript page.

en carria... (This section continues the handwritten text from the top of the page. It begins with a large, decorative initial 'C' or 'D' enclosed in a circle. The text is written in the same cursive hand as the top section. It appears to be a continuation of the legal document, possibly detailing the appointment of a 'figuero' (surveyor) or a similar official. The text is dense and covers most of the lower half of the page.
