

Handwritten text in an old script, likely a historical document or treaty. The text is arranged in approximately 30 lines, with some lines containing large decorative initials or symbols. The script is dense and characteristic of early modern European records.

