

The first section of the manuscript contains dense, handwritten text in a cursive script. The ink is dark, and the handwriting is somewhat slanted and compact. The text appears to be a continuation of a larger work, with some lines starting with capital letters. The overall appearance is that of a historical document or a manuscript page from a book.

A. P. R. E. S. B. E. T. A. C. I. A.

The second section of the manuscript, following the section header, continues with handwritten text. This section is also densely packed with cursive script. The text is written in a similar style to the first section, with some variations in line spacing and ink density. The overall layout remains consistent with the rest of the page.

