

The first part of the manuscript is a list of names and titles, including "John de ...", "Thomas de ...", and "Richard de ...". The text is written in a cursive hand and is organized into several columns. The names are often followed by titles or descriptions of their positions. The handwriting is dense and somewhat difficult to decipher in places due to the cursive style and some fading.

The second part of the manuscript contains a series of entries, possibly related to the names listed above. These entries are also written in cursive and appear to be organized into columns. The text is less legible than the first part, but some words and phrases are still discernible.

The third part of the manuscript is a continuation of the entries, with some lines appearing to be more descriptive or narrative in nature. The handwriting remains consistent with the rest of the document.

The final part of the manuscript is a list of names and titles, similar to the first part. It includes names like "John de ..." and "Thomas de ...". The text is written in the same cursive hand and is organized into columns.

