

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Latin or German, covering the upper two-thirds of the page. The text is dense and appears to be a formal document or record.

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Latin or German, covering the lower third of the page. This section is less legible than the one above.

