

A circular, heavily textured, and mottled surface, possibly a cross-section of a biological specimen or a mineral sample. The surface is covered in numerous small, dark, irregular spots and pits, giving it a rough, granular appearance. There are faint concentric rings or layers visible, suggesting a growth pattern or internal structure. The overall color is a light, mottled gray or off-white.