

Handwritten text in a Gothic script, appearing to be a list or a series of entries. The text is dense and somewhat difficult to decipher due to the cursive style and some ink bleed-through. It begins with words that might be "et dicitur" and continues with several lines of text, some of which are underlined. The entries seem to describe various items or locations, possibly related to a library or a collection.

Another section of handwritten text in Gothic script, located in the lower half of the page. It is separated from the upper section by a large, sweeping flourish that extends from the left margin. This section also appears to be a list or a series of entries, continuing the theme of the upper section. The handwriting is consistent with the first section.
