

Handwritten text in a historical script, possibly a medical or administrative record, covering the upper portion of the page.

Middle section of handwritten text, featuring large, stylized characters and significant scribbling, possibly representing a signature or a specific title.

Lower section of handwritten text, appearing more legible than the middle section.

