

The page contains several lines of handwritten text in a cursive script, likely from the 16th or 17th century. The text is heavily obscured by large, irregular white patches, suggesting significant damage or redaction. The visible fragments of text include words and phrases such as "Schreibungsart", "11", and various unrecognizable words. The script is dense and flowing, with many ascenders and x-heights.

