

Allegory of the world's condition and the state of the church
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field

The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field

The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field

The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field

The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field

The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field

The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field
The world is a garden and the church is a field

