

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or letter. The text is heavily crossed out with multiple diagonal lines, rendering it largely illegible. Some words are still discernible, such as "Papa" and "Macon".

Handwritten text in a cursive script, continuing from the upper section. It contains several lines of text, some of which are crossed out. The name "Macon" is clearly visible in the lower right portion of this section.

