

Handwritten Chinese characters in a cursive script, arranged in two vertical columns. The characters are dark and appear to be ink or a similar pigment applied to the aged, textured surface of the cover. The right column contains characters that are more legible, while the left column is more stylized and partially obscured by the binding's texture.

