

u
o

u
o

The first part of the book is a history of the city of London, from its foundation to the present time. It is written in a plain and simple style, and contains many interesting particulars of the city's growth and improvement. The author has made use of many ancient records and monuments, and has been very diligent in his researches.
 The second part of the book is a description of the city's government and constitution.
 It contains a full and accurate account of the several corporations, and of the manner in which they are governed. It also contains a full and accurate account of the city's laws and customs, and of the manner in which they are administered.
 The third part of the book is a description of the city's trade and commerce. It contains a full and accurate account of the several trades and professions, and of the manner in which they are carried on.
 It also contains a full and accurate account of the city's manufactures, and of the manner in which they are carried on. The fourth part of the book is a description of the city's education. It contains a full and accurate account of the several schools and colleges, and of the manner in which they are governed.
 It also contains a full and accurate account of the city's universities, and of the manner in which they are governed.
 The fifth part of the book is a description of the city's religion. It contains a full and accurate account of the several churches and chapels, and of the manner in which they are governed. It also contains a full and accurate account of the city's religious orders, and of the manner in which they are governed.

The sixth part of the book is a description of the city's architecture. It contains a full and accurate account of the several
 churches and chapels, and of the manner in which they are governed. It also
 contains a full and accurate account of
 the city's religious orders, and of the manner in which they are governed. The seventh part of the book is a description of the city's antiquities. It contains a full and accurate account of the several monuments and remains, and of the manner in which they are preserved. It also contains a full and accurate account of the city's ancient coins, and of the manner in which they are preserved. The eighth part of the book is a description of the city's natural history. It contains a full and accurate account of the several minerals and fossils, and of the manner in which they are preserved. It
 also contains a full and accurate account of the city's natural curiosities, and of the manner in which they are preserved.
 The ninth part of the book is a description of the city's gardens and parks. It contains a full and accurate account of the several gardens and parks, and of the manner in which they are preserved. It also contains a full and accurate account of the city's public buildings, and of the manner in which they are preserved. The tenth part of the book is a description of the city's public works. It contains a full and accurate account of the several public works, and of the manner in which they are carried on. It also contains a full and accurate account of the city's public charities, and of the manner in which they are governed. The eleventh part of the book is a description of the city's public institutions. It contains a full and accurate account of the several public institutions, and of the manner in which they are governed. It also
 contains a full and accurate account of the city's public libraries, and of the manner in which they are governed. The twelfth part of the book is a description of the city's public offices. It contains a full and accurate account of the several public offices, and of the manner in which they are governed. It also
 contains a full and accurate account of the city's public courts, and of the manner in which they are governed. The thirteenth part of the book is a description of the city's public entertainments. It contains a full and accurate account of the several public entertainments, and of the manner in which they are carried on. It also contains a full and accurate account of the city's public games, and of the manner in which they are carried on.

