

9. Thomas de Sulpho. Sicut et de sulphore. Sicut et de sulphore.

Handwritten text in a dense, cursive script, likely a medieval manuscript. The text is written in a dark ink on aged, yellowed paper. It appears to be a technical or scientific treatise, possibly related to the title 'Sicut et de sulphore' (As to and of sulphur). The script is highly stylized and difficult to decipher without specialized knowledge of the language and dialect. There are several large, decorative initials and flourishes throughout the page, including a large 'S' at the top left and a large 'S' at the bottom center. The text is arranged in approximately 25 lines, with some lines being significantly longer than others. The overall appearance is that of a well-used, historical document.
