

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a letter or document. The text is dense and spans most of the page's width. It appears to be a formal or legal document, possibly a contract or a letter of appointment, given the use of terms like "señor" and "señora".

Handwritten text, possibly a signature or a specific clause within the document. It includes the name "Alonso" and other illegible words.

A large, highly stylized signature or flourish, possibly belonging to a noble or official. It features long, sweeping lines and loops, characteristic of late 15th or early 16th-century cursive.

A small circular mark or stamp, possibly a seal or a date, located in the lower-center of the page.

Large, faint handwritten text or a large flourish on the right side of the page, partially overlapping the main signature.
