

The first thing I saw when I stepped out of the train was a vast plain stretching to the horizon under a pale, overcast sky.
 The air was still and heavy, and the ground beneath my feet felt like a soft, yielding carpet.
 In the distance, a few small buildings and a lone figure could be seen, marking the edge of a small settlement.
 The silence was profound, a quietude that seemed to embrace the entire landscape.
 It was a strange and beautiful sight, one that I had never before.
