

Handwritten text in a medieval script, likely Latin or Old English, covering the majority of the page. The text is written in a dense, cursive hand with many flourishes and is largely illegible due to fading and bleed-through from the reverse side of the parchment.

