

One of the most important things to be remembered is that the law is a living system which changes with the needs of society. It is not a static set of rules but a dynamic process of growth and development.
The law must be able to adapt to new circumstances and to new technological advances. It must be flexible and responsive to the changing needs of the community.
The law is a tool for social control and for the resolution of disputes.
It is a means of maintaining order and justice in society. The law must be applied fairly and equally to all. It must be based on principles of justice and equity. The law is a reflection of the values and beliefs of a society. It is a mirror of the culture and the spirit of the times. The law is a powerful force for change and for progress. It is a force for good and for the betterment of the human condition.
