

Handwritten text in a cursive script, possibly a list or account. The text is somewhat obscured by ink bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.

And James the son of Joseph and the other brethren of Jesus referred to the synagogues of the Jews and to the people of the Jews teaching them the things which they had learned of Jesus the Nazarene and saying, Behold we have here a man who has done these things which we know to be done by Jesus the Nazarene

and they were all confounding him and disputing against his words because they said, How can this man know these things which he has not learned

