

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in dark ink on aged, yellowed paper. It consists of approximately 25 lines of text, with some lines being significantly more legible than others. The script is dense and characteristic of the late 15th or early 16th century. The text appears to be a formal record or a legal document, possibly related to a land grant or a royal decree, given the use of terms like 'gratia' and 'regis'. The handwriting is somewhat slanted and the ink shows some fading and bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.
