The first part of the original text is written in a highly stylized, cursive script. It appears to be a list or a series of entries, possibly related to a collection or a set of items. The text is difficult to decipher due to the extreme cursive style and some fading.

This section contains a large, decorative flourish or signature that spans across the middle of the page. It is highly ornate and characteristic of 17th-century manuscript writing.

The second main block of text is also in cursive. It begins with a large initial letter, possibly 'D' or 'D'. The text appears to be a formal declaration or a set of instructions. It contains several lines of text, some of which are underlined. The handwriting is consistent with the first block.
