

The first part of the text is a dense block of handwritten cursive script, likely a Latin letter or document. It begins with a large initial letter, possibly 'S' or 'Sicut', and continues with several lines of text. The handwriting is somewhat faded and difficult to decipher in many places due to the cursive style and ink bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.

The second part of the text is another dense block of handwritten cursive script, continuing the letter or document. It features a large initial 'E' and continues with several lines of text. The handwriting is consistent with the first part, showing signs of age and ink bleed-through.
