

Pover de la com

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or legal record. The text is dense and covers most of the page, with some lines appearing to be crossed out or heavily faded. The script is characteristic of the late 15th or early 16th century.

