

Handwritten text in a cursive script, possibly Latin, with some lines appearing to be in a different language or dialect. The text is dense and occupies the upper half of the page.

A large area of handwritten text, appearing very faded and difficult to read. The script is cursive and fills most of the lower two-thirds of the page. Some words are more legible than others, such as "De regno" and "de reo" at the bottom.

