

Faint, illegible handwriting in a cursive script, possibly from the 17th or 18th century. Some words are difficult to decipher but appear to include names and titles.

The main body of the page contains several lines of very faint, illegible handwriting. The text is mostly mirrored from the reverse side of the leaf, appearing as bleed-through. The script is consistent with the top section, likely a cursive hand from the same period.

