

Handwritten text in Spanish, likely a royal decree or administrative order. The text discusses the selection of a 'mitad de oficio' (half of an office) and the proposal of candidates for various positions, including 'Indios Personeros' and 'Diputados'. It mentions the 'Estado noble y gral.' (noble and general state) and the 'Estado gral.' (general state). The text is written in a cursive script and is somewhat faded and stained.

Handwritten text in Spanish, likely a royal decree or administrative order. The text discusses the selection of a 'mitad de oficio' (half of an office) and the proposal of candidates for various positions, including 'Indios Personeros' and 'Diputados'. It mentions the 'Estado noble y gral.' (noble and general state) and the 'Estado gral.' (general state). The text is written in a cursive script and is somewhat faded and stained.

