

THE CIVIL MARIAGE ACT, 1836.
SECTION 2.
MARRIAGES TO BE VALID.

The first of the parties to the marriage was a person of full age and sound mind
and was at the time of the marriage
a British subject or a person domiciled
in England or in Scotland or in Ireland
at the time of the marriage.

The second of the parties to the marriage
was a person of full age and sound mind
and was at the time of the marriage
a British subject or a person domiciled
in England or in Scotland or in Ireland
at the time of the marriage.

